(a) Holism in Anthropology.

(10 Marks)

Anthropology (Anthropos = human, logos = study) is the holistic study of socio cultural evolution of, and biological variation in human beings across space and time. (M. HERSKOVITZ)

It is a synthetic science that has close links with both natural and social science, thus making it a HOLISTIC discipline.

HOLISM: a hallmark of Anthropology.

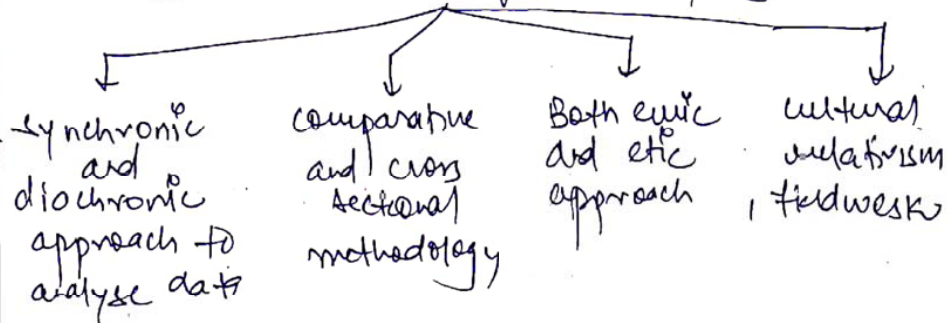

It refers to studying the multifaceted dimensions of a phenomenon without any narrow reductionist findings.

① Kula, Potlatch, Koka reciprocity have highlighted the EMBEDDEDNESS of kinship and society in economic life of primitive societies.

② The 4 fold classification given by

Franz Boas studies all the dimensions of humans

(iii) The tools of Anthropological research

(iv) Integrated interdisciplinary research

eg - ethnolinguistics, social psychology etc

(v) Multiple theories to analyse from holistic dimension

eg - Julian Steward's cultural ecology

- Julie White's technological determinism

Thus Anthropology has evolved to be a holistic discipline that must be encouraged to avoid racism, ethnocentrism, regionalism etc
