10*5=50

1.a) Cultural shock and reverse culture shock

Culture as defined by EB Tylor in Primitive Society (1871) is the complex of whole knowledge belief law art morals etc learned by man as a member of society.

Cultural shock pertains to the phenomenon of recognition of differences between one's own culture and the culture encountered.

(eg) Cannibalism among Arakami Nages as shock to colonial ethnographers

Contemporary relevance

(i) Due to globalization, culture shocks occur owing to frequent movement of people & ideas.

(eg) Chinese practise of dog eating as a shock

Closely related to ideas of diffusion and acculturation culture shock may lead to

- (a) Integration (adaptation of practices)
- (b) Rejection (continuation of earlier practices)

Counter culture shock is the recognition of changes occurring in native land by foreign individuals

- (eg) Traditional families disbelieve at LGBTQ+ movements in India

Contemporary relevance :

- ① Increasing Xenophobia (migrant attacks) need for tolerant attitude towards diverse culture (cultural relativism of FBos)

- ② Emic understanding may increase harmony in society
