(d) Enculturation and Transculturation.

(10 Marks)

Enculturation can be defined as the process of learning one's own cultural traits. That is the process of learning of various customs and traditions of one's own culture.

Enculturation involves role of two people :-

① Carrier :- They are the members of the society who transmit the culture to the receiver. They can be the parents, teachers, elder brother-sister, etc.

② Receiver :- ~~They are the~~ The one who is learning the elements of his/her culture is the receiver.

For Eg :- Youth dormitories in tribal societies play a very significant role in enculturation of the individual.

Transculturation can be defined as the process of learning the elements of culture; other than one's own culture.

Eg → It can happen via diffusion of cultures

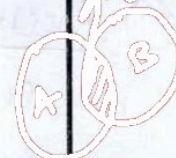

for example: →

Elements of Mughal art were diffused to Rajput as well Pahar art.

Similarly, elements of Indus Valley Civilization were diffused to Torway culture via transculturation.

Hence, transculturation play a very vital role in diffusion of cultural elements via cultural contacts.

Transculturation
when 2 different cultures come into firsthand contact → traits exchanged
may lead to formation of hybrid culture
