- Q2. (a) Although most people in today's world still function within geographically defined communities, territorial borders have become increasingly irrelevant given the "cultural flows" in our emerging global environment. Discuss. (15 marks)

E.B. Tylor in 'Primitive Society (1871)' described culture as a -complex whole of knowledge, belief, customs etc acquired by man as member of society.

Hutchinson too defined culture as socially learnt behaviour.

Today, it is well known that cultural traits can diffuse among societies and can be acquired via enculturation/aculturation.

This cultural flow is made possible by

→ Globalisation
→ penetration of media / Internet etc

eg] Yoga, Ayurveda (from India) have gained popularity world over g] Western brands like MacD, etc are also accepted by Indian society.
