(b)

Pluralism and multiculturalism are the description of social group interaction and relation within a society.

Pluralism It is the existence of several ethnic, religious, linguistic or sub social groups within a culture.

Characteristics — 1. Interaction between groups is limited.

2. Existence does not mean recognition by state.

3. In individual sphere, one follows one's ideology, but in public sphere, rights are not guaranteed.

eg ⇒ European countries can be called pluralist society.

Characteristics - 1. Existence and recognition of rights by state (Part Art 29, 30 of Indian constitution)

2. Can follow rituals, norms with freedom (within the law)

3. Harmony with other social groups in existence.

Relevance - Need to move from pluralist society to multicultural society where rights of all social groups are recognised. Post-modernist argue it led to multivocality and religious multiculturalism along with peaceful co-existence.
