(c) It is man who has made the existence of culture possible. Discuss

15

EB Tylor in his book 'Primitive culture (1871)' defined culture as the complex whole consisting of values, norms, morals and other habits learnt by man as a member of society.

Kroeber & Kluckhohn → culture is the learnt human behaviour

Herskovitz → culture is the man made part of environment.

According to Leslie White - culture doesn't simply mean learning symbols, rather it means to bestow meaning to symbols and comprehend them.

Michael Tomabellor man is the only being who could use his cognitive abilities to bring out modification among the cultural entities. Hence, this ensure culture ~~is~~ remains dynamic.

• McGrew (1960) argues there are other non primates who ~~can learn~~ have some characteristics of culture like gestural communication of chimpanzee by Jane Goodall (1986)

~~But only man~~

Making existence of culture possible

→ through transmission
across generation

→ proper socialization

→ Definite rules & procedures.

keep doing changes to make it alive.

Through above discussion it can be well concluded that ~~presently~~ culture is unique to human beings.
