i.e. the lateral relations

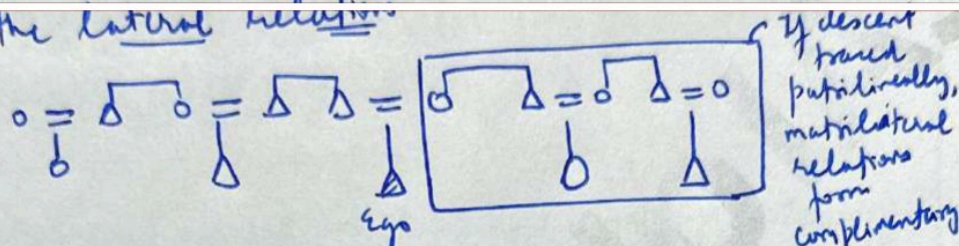

Fig-1. Bilateral relations of ego and complementary filiation

Meyer Fortes studied Tallensi of Ghana and observed that matrilateral relations form an important link in an individual's life.

Relevance of complementary filiation

- 1) Role in rites de passage — The complementary affiliates have an important role in various rituals concerned with individual's life at various stages.
- 2) In North-Indian Hindu marriages, role of maternal and uncle at time of marriage.

2) Solving feuds → In lineage-based societies blood feud may arise due to killing of an individual. This may lead to spiral of vengeful killings. At this time, complementary affiliates from relevant lineage play an important role in settling feud (e.g.) In ruers - Leopard skin-chief.

3) Psychological support → Complementary affiliates play an important role in time of distress to an individual.

4) Economic support → They also lend some economic support, trade craft. to an individual.

Complementary affiliation plays an important role in understanding kinship relations especially of simple societies.
