

In stateless societies kinship and power are related as kinsmen build the authority and social power to influence one's decisions.

Kinship as per Abercrombie is the relationship by affinal or consanguine relations for a person.

while Power as per Max Weber is the tendency to do one's bidding in a communal action even when in opposing by majority.

Interrelation

① Kinship influencing power

- Evans Pritchard study on "The African political system" → lineage based hierarchy → kinsmen succeed to maximal lineage leadership.

— social influence → public mockery in case of violation of rules like incest taboo.

② Power Influencing Kinship

↳ In modern day society we observe weakened kinship ties because power of law, state has superseded power of kin relations and superstition.

③ Both influence each other

↳ In Mizo → chief is selected who has charismatic personality + comes from kingship lineage — complex interdependence.

~~Thus~~ in contemporary society, power of parents, grandparents to control children necessary (kin relations) due to modernization.
