(d) Kinship and power.

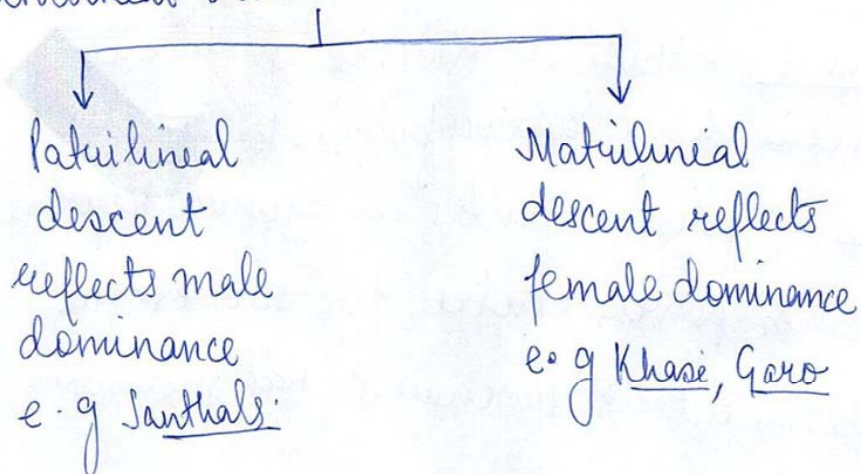

(10 Marks)

As per "Ambercrombie", the relationships established by marriage (alliance) and blood (real & supposed) are known as "Kinship" relations.

"Power" is the ability to carry out a particular task by use of coercion.

Forms of Kinship relations & their association with power :-

① unilineal descent :-

⇒ In Bilineal Kinship relations; if political systems are transmitted from father side; it results in concentration of power in male side.

(Tanna Bawa)

● e.g. In certain tribal societies;
mother side relatives are Toking & emotional relations

Father side relations are more of formal & serious relations; representing power concentration in male side.

Relevance :- Study of Kinship in tribal societies helps anthropologists to focus of power centre & ensure reforms in such power centre for successful flourishing of Panchayati Raj Institutions in tribal societies.
