

L2A™

(e) What are the major difference between North India & South India kinship systems 10

Do not write anything in this margin

Kinship refers to the affinal and consanguineous relations within the individuals. (Abercrombie)

Difference

- 1) In North India, primarily father's name is used by son whereas in South mother's name is also used in middle by son.
- 2) High prominence given to groom's family during marriage in North India while in South India prominence given according to age.
- 3) Prof. Irawati Karve → high prevalence of cross cousin marriages in South India compared to North India.

L2ATM

Do not write anything in this margin

4) ~~less~~ Influence of matrilinal societies is seen in South India while dominance of patrilineal societies with negligible presence of matrilinal societies.

5) More of classificatory terms in South India (Amm for elder) in comparison to North India.

6) Less prevalence of practice of dowry in South India than North India.

7) More egalitarian kinship relations seen in South India than North India.

Hence, kinship systems vary differently ~~as for~~ spatially and temporally in North & South India.