

(Don't Write anything in this Area)

(b) Redistribution in contemporary society.

(10 Marks)

Karl Polanyi in his book "The Great Transformation" has described "Redistribution" as one of the methods of exchange in human societies.

Redistribution :- Surplus are generally collected by the ^{central authority} Chief and redistributed among the poorer sections of the society e.g Big-Men & Big-Women societies.

Contemporary Relevance :-

"Welfare role" of a state can be Indian seen as a method of Redistribution where in taxes are collected from upper classes and basic services.

are provided to poorer sections of the society

e.g. Corporate Tax $\Rightarrow$ Taken

Ayushman Bharat $\Rightarrow$ Given no need

Such redistribution is further available today in some societies e.g. Kibbutz society of Israel where in economic activity is carried in union.

*good examples like Tanganyika
multilateral aid*

In today's contemporary societies; although market forces dominate the method of production, consumption and distribution but still some societies have redistribution exchange for ^{ensuring} greater equality in society e.g. Potlach; British Columbia

very

2-5