Globalization is the integration of different cultures and economies of world resulting from trade and industrialization.

Positive impact :

① Value for artefacts : The indigenous products and artefacts have now access to national and international markets thus boosting ~~de~~ livelihood opportunities. E.g. TRIFED opening up tribal marketplaces like Dilli Haat etc.

② Recognition of art : Globalization led to the recognition of indigenous arts and knowledge with instruments such as GI tags thus identifying the true ownership of art.

③ Employment: Globalization led to the rise in white-collar and blue-collar employment opportunities thus diversifying livelihood options.

Negative impact:

① Loss of traditional livelihood: Due to development displacement and forced land acquisitions, globalization led to loss of traditional livelihoods of tribes.
Eg - Vedanta industry in Odisha

② Forced employment: Due to lack of means of earning, indigenous people are forced to work as labour on a daily wage.

③ Infusion of materialism: Globalisation led to indigenous economy becoming more materialistic leading to decline of tribal values and customs.

④ Monetisation of tribal economy :

Globalisation led to tribal economic relations becoming money oriented thus leading to disruption of traditional economic relationships.

Eg. The decline of jajmani system due to the infusion of globalisation.

⑤ Stratification : Globalisation led to new economic and social stratification in indigenous economy thus leading to rise of class divisions in egalitarian societies.

⑥ Loss of traditional knowledge : Globalisation gave scope for bigger MNCs to duplicate traditional knowledge systems and exploit them for their own profit. This leads to intellectual exploitation of indigenous knowledge.

⑦ Indebtedness: The penetration of debt avenues and lack of regulation has led to rise of indebtedness in indigenous economy.

Though globalisation has shown avenues for tribal economy to stand on its own feet, it is essential to regulate and remove the ill effects of globalisation on indigenous economy to reap all the benefits.
