

(Don't Write anything in this Area)

(b) Redistribution in contemporary society.

(10 Marks)

Redistribution economy is where there is a central figure that receives all the economic resources and distributes them in the group

In contemporary society:

- (i) Due to rise in nuclearization of families, there is a decline in redistribution within families such as joint families.
- (ii) In contemporary societies, the redistribution function is done by the government of that society.
- (iii) The economic resources are collected in the form of taxes and they are distributed in the form of welfare expenditure and social security.

(iv) However, in contemporary societies, all the ~~resources~~ economic resources are not pooled. Only a part of them are pooled in the form of taxes.

(v) Even the welfare expenditure is done on ~~to~~ some sections of society who are underprivileged.

Thus, modern redistribution in contemporary society is a partially ~~contracting~~ one with the government becoming the central figure that controls it.