

Fogelson & Adorn in their work: Anthropology of Power defined power as ability of an individual/group/organization to influence, change or control behaviour or outcome of other individual/group/organization.

Features

- cultural feature
- Acquired
- to exercise influence over others.
- Result in social hierarchies.
- usually at centre of politics.

Max Weber → Power is zero sum game.

Criticism → Talcott Parson → Not a zero sum game.

Lundberg → Three types

- Coercive
- Utilitarian
- Identitative.

Marxist → Those owning resources own power.

Hence anthropology provides diverse ways to highlight variation in interpretation of power.
